4-H Friday Notes Changes and Article Format Reminder

Manitowoc County 4-H Program Assistant, Amanda Cordova, will be starting to send out 4-H Friday Notes each week. We're hoping this change will help provide the newsletter to 4-H families on a weekly basis as it was intended. Please keep in mind, that only articles sent in the body of an e-mail or attached as a Word or PDF document will be accepted for 4-H Friday Notes. Send articles for 4-H Friday Notes by e-mail to both Amanda Cordova, amandacordova@co.manitowoc.wi.us and to Kevin Palmer, kevinpalmer@co.manitowoc.wi.us by Wednesday noon for inclusion in that week's Friday newsletter. Please put "4-H Friday Notes" in the subject line. Thank you!

Register Now - 4-H Demonstration Event

Do you know how to do something that you could share with others, like building a bird house, caring for a pet or making snickerdoodles? These skills, and many more, qualify you to participate in the Demonstration Event. We have confirmed a judge for the event scheduled for Wednesday evening, May 24. Everything you need to know about planning and giving a demonstration is outlined in the attached "Guide to 4-H Demonstrations". Please follow the link below to complete the registration form.

Free Breakfast - Breakfast on the Farm

As we prepare for the upcoming Manitowoc County Dairy Breakfast on Sunday, June 11 at Habeck Homestead Farms it takes many volunteers to help make this event happen. We are looking for 4-H clubs and their families that would be interested in helping for a few hours serve/prepare food.

Shift times available are the following:

7:30AM to 10:30AM

10AM to 12:30PM

Volunteers who work a full shift will receive a free breakfast, but they must pre-register with Sherrie and they must check-in at the Volunteer Check-In booth at the event. Parking will be in the hay field north of the farm. It takes well over 200 volunteers to help make this event happen.

To volunteer or for questions please contact Sherrie Pinkerton at sbspinkerton@gmail.com or 920-973-4944. Your support and volunteerism is crucial to us supporting the 4-H program in the future.

2017 Wisconsin State Fair Exhibits

If your exhibit was selected as a State Fair Exhibit during last year's county fair, we will be looking for your exhibit in July. We will send out letters in early July to all State Fair Exhibitors to bring their exhibit to the Extension office for transport to State Fair. Please wait until you receive the letter to bring your exhibit in to our office. Thanks!

Date to Add Projects Extended

In order to exhibit an item at the Manitowoc County Fair, you need to be enrolled in the project that corresponds to the exhibit. The deadline to add a project has been extended to June 1, 2017. If you would like to add a project, please login to 4-H Online and go to Member/Volunteer List, Edit, Participation, Projects, and Add a Project.

Guide to 4-H Demonstrations

Me? Demonstrate how to do something in front of people?
Yes! You can do it!

A demonstration is putting words into action. An effective demonstration is the best way of teaching someone how to do something while explaining the procedure of doing it.

Successful demonstrations don't have to be difficult or complicated. Something you have learned or something you enjoy doing will make a good demonstration. Develop one main idea or topic to share.

Choosing Your Topic

Choose an interesting topic you know something about that can be clearly demonstrated and has action. The more you know about the subject, the easier it will be. If you're a beginner, choose a simple topic like "How to Care for Houseplants" or "What to Feed a Pet" or "How to Make a Peanut Butter and Jelly Sandwich".

Choosing a Title

Select a title that will describe your demonstration and catch the interest of your audience. The title should suggest or give a hint as to what the demonstration is about. Be creative. For example, if you are going to do a demonstration on eye makeup you might title it "The Eyes Have It" as opposed to "Applying Eye Makeup".

Planning Your Demonstration

Planning is the key to success and will give you confidence. Most people remember what they see rather than what they hear, so the way you present your demonstration is very important. It should consist of three parts – the introduction, the body, and the conclusion.

Introduction - The introduction is a follow-up of the title to let the audience know what you will be talking about. It should be brief and clear. To catch the interest of the audience, use a short, snappy statement or a question that relates to your topic.

Body - This is the main part of your demonstration. Use an outline to help you organize your presentation into three to seven points or steps. You should show and explain all the steps of what you are doing in logical order. Each step should be clearly shown or explained before moving on to the next one.

In demonstrations that have long intervals between steps, the entire process will not be shown directly to the audience, but each step should be clearly explained. It is recommended to have the item or product available at various stages of development.

Conclusion – This is the last chance to put the message across. Reemphasize the important points of your presentation and show your finished product. Never introduce new material in the conclusion. Smile and be proud of your accomplishment. You did it!

Ask if there are any questions. When a question is asked, let the entire audience know what the question was by repeating it. If you don't know the answer, apologize and say you don't know the answer. It's alright to admit you do not know the answer.

When there are no more questions, thank the audience and invite them to sample and/or inspect the finished product. Pass out any handouts you may have available. Gather your equipment as quickly and quietly as possible.

More Tips

If you aren't introduced by someone before your presentation, introduce yourself and your subject.

Delivery

An effective demonstration always begins with a smile. With practice and experience, you will be able to develop a delivery that shows poise and enthusiasm. You should speak clearly and use proper grammar. Make eye contact with your audience. It's important to talk to them instead of the judge, the table top, or your visuals. You can emphasize important words and phrases by changing the volume or tone of your voice.

In addition: Stand erect

- Take your time
- Act and look like you enjoy the demonstration
- Use complete sentences and be sure to describe all actions fully
- Keep notes available but never read from them or rely on them too heavily
- Use your own words but don't memorize a speech
- Goofs do happen! Explain what happened and go right on with your demonstration

Time

If your demonstration has a time limit, make sure you abide by it. If the time interval is 5-7 minutes for your age, aim for 6 minutes for your demonstration.

Materials

Arrange equipment and supplies so they don't block the audience's view. Materials should be kept in the background, so the audience will watch you rather than the equipment. If many things are needed, arrange them on trays and place them on a table behind you. Put things to be used together on their own trays. You can complete one step, return that tray with its materials, and get the next tray.

- When possible, use transparent equipment so the audience sees the material and the process.
- Label containers for the audience to see
- Keep a hand towel or paper towels handy, if needed. A paper bag taped to the table serves as a handy disposal container.

Visual Aids

Using visual aids can enhance some demonstrations. Posters, charts, or flannelboard can be used if they will make the demonstration more effective. Well-prepared visuals help the audience learn faster, understand better, and remember longer. Sometimes only the title of your demonstration needs to be on a poster. Keep visuals simple and make sure lettering and pictures are large enough to be seen by the audience.

Appearance

Choose clothing that looks neat and is suitable for the occasion. Avoid flashy jewelry and other accessories that will draw attention away from your topic.

Practice

Practice can make perfect. Practice your demonstration in front of a mirror or before your family so they can give you suggestions that will improve your presentation. Practice sessions will help you learn to control your nervousness and enable you to feel comfortable.
